WHEN TO USE AN MOU

For collaborations built on shared goals: co-hosting events, referrals, joint programmes. If money or significant services are exchanged, use a proper contract or grant agreement as well.

NOT LEGAL ADVICE

This is a starting point. For any partnership involving money, data sharing or risk, ask a lawyer to review the final text before anyone signs.

3 Ground rules

Communications and branding
Neither party uses the other's name or logo without written approval. Joint announcements are agreed in advance, and each party is credited.

Data protection
Each party handles personal data in line with the Data Protection Act, 2012 (Act 843), shares only the minimum data needed, and keeps it secure.

Safeguarding
Each party applies its safeguarding policy and code of conduct, and reports any concern to the other's focal person within [24 hours].

Confidentiality
Information marked confidential is not shared outside the partnership without written consent.

Materials and ideas
Each party keeps ownership of what it brings. Jointly created materials may be used by both, with credit, unless agreed otherwise.

Disagreements
The focal persons try to resolve them first, then the heads of both organisations. If that fails, the parties may agree on a mediator.

4 Term, changes and signatures

This MoU starts on the date signed and runs until [end date]. It can be changed only in writing, signed by both parties. Either party may end it with [30] days' written notice. This MoU records the parties' shared intentions and is not legally binding, except the clauses on [confidentiality and data protection], which the parties agree to honour.
